Notice to Advertisers.

The unusual pressure upon our columns for some days past has crowded out a number of advertisements, much to our regret and the annoyance of our patrons. We, this morning, omit our usual variety of news and miscellaneous matter, and yield much of the space usually given to editorial matter.

The Union Press has a rambling article about State rights, wherein the ditor succeeds in showing that the subject is very incomprehensible to the writer. Will the editor please tell his readers wherein it is provided that a State can forfeit any right reserved to it, or not granted to the general government, and not prohibited to the States, by the crimes of Governors or Legislators, or any maorities or minorities? And wherein it is

(the present Emperor), the "doux entre, as his mother was wont to call him, with a more melancholy, confiding and tender expression of countenance, was already remarkable at all bodily exercises. Alleged on the state of the s of the States, has become subversive of 'THESE ENDS," the people have a right to alter or abolish them, and institute new Governments, etc. If they have power to nake this revolution, and there is good eason for it, it is all right as long as it

We are against this revolution. We see no good reason for it. The party having the powers of the Federal Government have no right to go into revolution. In so doing, they are in a worse attitude To usurp powers by a perversion of the forms of Government, is a worse crime than an open defiance of those forms. When men engage in revolution, they must make sure of two points: first, they must have a good reason for it; and, econd, they must have power to succeed. The rebels thought they had a good reason; but they failed. So they will not do at all. The Press & Co. think they have a good reason to extirpate these reserved ights of States; and so far they have suceeded. If they get through satisfactorily, and maintain good government with the rights of States annihilated, they will be of the water is unknown, and its surface written down patriots; but it is a mean pretense in them to affect to be maintainng the Government, when, in fact, they is

She has been trying in vain for some time among her Republicans to find lucky in having no less than four defaulters, we believe, in the Treasury Department, in succession. The Legislature tied up things in the best possible way, as that body thought. They put up hedges, dug ditches and trammeled the treasure in every way to prevent fraud. Genius, however, is not to be cramped,

A French writer gives this account of jorities or minorities? And wherein it is provided that the powers forfeited fall to the United States, so that the latter becomes a trustee, holding forfeited powers, and authorized to exercise them? How came the government of the United States invested with such powers?

The writer in the Press points out what he considers great difficulties, in admitting these rights of States; but no matter what the difficulties are, the Press & Co, have no right to remove the difficulties by usurpations of power. There is no greater crime than usurpations of power. Secssion is no worse; and the excuse, that a party deems it necessary, is only the old excuse of tyrants. The judge may decide the law not made right exactly; Arenenberg: decide the law not made right exactly; tended behind, and in front was seen on Senate of the United States when these members are guilty of treason. If a judge and jury were themselves guilty of treason, it would be very preposterous for them to convict a man of treason, and sentence him to be hung. It would be lawful and valid nevertheless.

The Constitution has not left the general Government unprotected. The Senate is the judge of the qualification of its members; and, if a man be elected and is guilty of treason, they can convict him of it, and reject him. There are adequate remedies provided for such difficulties; remedies provided for such difficulties; and it is not left to a party to make remedies of its own.

If the rights of the States are inalienable, the Press contends that Secession is right. We presume the Press would admit that the powers of the Federal Government are inalienable; that they can't be forfeited by the crimes of the President, or Congress, or the Federal judiciary.

But the rights of the States rest on the same basis—the rights of the States rest on the same basis—the rights of the States rest on the court. tures and two timepieces; in another,

The only right the Press & Co. can be seen that the second between his promise and his end. Such deaths are pledges; they are fruitful, sacred, imprescriptible gauges given to a cause. The Prince Louis (the present Emperor), the "doux entre." though only thirteen, whenever we were mount, he was sure to be the first to offer himself, and the picture in which Cotter-eau, at a later period, drew him in the act of taming a superb Swiss courser which had always thrown its riders, was no fiction or flattery. The precious fellow it seems could not keep from speculating with the money of the State, and being caught at it, has incontinently come to grief.

A few days since a difficulty arose be-tween Hiram Husk and Robinson Hur-din, brothers-in-law, at the residence of the latter, about six miles from Hawesrille, in Hancock county, which resulted in the shooting and killing of the former

The circumstances as elicited by the evidence were substantially as follows:

Husk went to Hardin's house to persuade the son of the latter to accompany him to Lewisport, there to accompany him to Lewisport, there to participate in dissipation and debauchery, as on former occasions. The young man being under age, Mr. and Mrs. Hardin objected to his going, whereupon Husk drew an army revolver and said: "If the boy wants to go he shall." Hardin then fired at Husk with a Colt's army revolver, the latter with a Colt's army revolver; the latter ran out the back door, and, passing by a window, looked in, when the former again fired, and pursued the latter some distance from the house, continuing to fire until from four to six shots had been disphayed. A special dispatch to the Herald, dated A special dispatch to the Heraid, dated Washington, Sept. 13, says: It is understood here that it is contemplated by the President to entirely withdraw the troops from the South in a short time, leaving the States lately in rebellion to reorganize on a basis of civil government precisely as they stood before the late war, with the exception of slavery. This policy is such as is said to have arisen through the good sense of leading Southern men themselves, in accepting the present position elves, in accepting the present position of affairs, as disclosed in the interview between President Johnson and a considbetween President Johnson and a considerable delegation of their leading men at the White House the other day. THE STATE FAIR. Third Day's Exhibition.

Fine Show and Large Attendance. List of Premiums Awarded in Floral Hall.

> Grand Tournament. The Exhibition To-day.

Yesterday was another most favorable day for the State Fair, the sun shining orth in all his majestic beauty in the norning, though about 10 o'clock it clouded up and we were visited by a refreshing shower, which cooled the atmosphere and laid the dust, making it more pleasant than before the shower occurred. Early in the morning thousands of ladies and entlemen began to wend their way towards the fair grounds, and long before noon the amphitheater was filled with the beauty and fashion of the State. As the fair progresses the excitement inreases; and each day the audience is larger than on the previous day.

As we have before remarked, these fairs are of great benefit to agricultural and mechanical interests and stock raising in the State, and we hope that they will reeive the hearty approval and support of our citizens generally. If the proper interest is manifested during the remainder of the week, the fair will yet prove a most

The exhibition vesterday was undoubtedly the finest vet, the entries for the different rings being large, and the contest for the premiums close and exciting. The excitement was intense, as the different horses were driven around the ring whirling past the immense crowd seated around the amphitheater. The stock exhibited, as we predicted, included a number of the finest harness horses to be found the State. In the ring for stallions, four years old and upwards, there were ten entries. Each horse was most beautiful and so thoroughly trained that the judges had great difficulty in arriving at the proper conclusion. At last the blue ribbon was awarded to L. L. Dorsey, of Jefferson, and the pink to Capt. A. Pennib gton, of Jefferson. The ring for stallions, two years old and under three, was also a most beautiful one, there being five noble steeds in the contest.

In the ring for one-year olds and under two, there were some very fine colts. Three noble looking representatives of noble stock entered for the premium. After this ring a recess was taken for dinner. During the recess for dinner we took a stroll through the promenade, extending from the front entrance to the ladies' dressing room, situated in the back of the grounds. Along this promenade, on either side, are extensive trees, which cast a shade all around and make it a most pleasant place. On each side of the walk, which is covered with tan bark the green lawn stretches out, and when were set, while others spread their tablecloths out on the grass. The hospitality shown here fully sustains the enviable utation of Kentucky for hospitality. None who are in attendance at the fair are allowed to leave without being provided with all the inner man requires. A stroll through this lawn at dinner time is well worth a trip to the grounds. The afternoon's entertainment was commenced with an exhibition of the stock of Mr. L. L. Dorsey. The ring consisted of old Golddust, 10 years of age, who is the first horse at the age of three years that made a mile in this State in three minutes; and ten of his colts, three fiveyear olds—Rosa Golddust, Rolla Golddust and Willie Golddust. The best of these horses made a mile in 2:34 without being pushed. Two four-year olds - Lydia Golddust and W. Woodruff; two twoyear olds, and two untimed four-year olds. Rose Golddust, one of the fiveyear olds mentioned above, when two years of age made a mile in 2:571/4. The ring was one of the finest that we have ever seen, if not the finest ever assembled In this country. Mr. Dorsey offers to match the get of Golddust, that is the colts that were exhibited, against the get of any other horse in the world for races of one, two, three and four mile heats, to come off in the spring. Jefferson county has the finest stock in the world, and if any doubt it, they can accept the challenge of Mr. Dorsey. The ring for aged mares brought together eight beautiful animals, who were driven around the ring for some time to give the judges an opportunity to witness their performances. They were all excellently trained, and showed to great advantage. The premium, in the end, was awarded to Captain George W. Womack, of Jefferson county, who handled one of the finest animals that has been on exhibition this week. She is named Highland Mary. The two-year olds made a very good

FLORAL HALL, After the exhibition in the amphithe ter we again paid a visit to Floral Hall, where the committees were still engaged in examining the different articles entered for exhibition and awarding the preniums. In our stroll through the hall esterday we noticed a very nice quilt pieced by Miss Julia C. Grinstead, who is but 5 years of age. The sewing is well done, and it is put together with taste and skill. There are several very fine specimens of painting, both in water and oil olors, which deserve a more extended notice than our space will admit of this morning. One of the silk quilts which ook a premium is one of the most beautiful pieces of work that we have ever seen, having an excellent likeness of George Washington, "the father of his country,"
